15 Nominated For Who's Who

Fifteen seniors have been selected to represent Western in the 12th edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," from a ballot of 21. The nominating committee was composed of President Paul L. Garrett and departmental heads who were advised by members of the department. Seniors elected were voted on by the student body from the list presented by the faculty in chapel yesterday.

The candidates were selected on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership in extra-curricular activities, and potentialities for future usefulness in business, professional and social life.

Western students who will represent the school in the annual publication are:

Mrs. W. R. Bushong, Tompkinsville; Mary Choncoff, Gary, Ind.; Doris Mae Darter, Harrodsburg; Marjorie Garner, Bow, Ky.; Betty Lou George, Idabel, Okla.; Elizabeth Louise Hale, Owensboro; Gloria Harris, Owensboro; Helen Gorham Henry, Central City; John S. Kelly, Louisville; Marion Miller, Central City; Virginia Price, Elberton, Ga.; Joe Robertson, Glen Dean, Ky.; Harriet Tillman, Vienna, Md.; Nola Ree Tinsley, Adairville, and Tom C. Venable, Bowling Green.

Article Published On Chemical Research

Continuing the study in the field of isatin and oxindol, an article entitled "A Study of Certain Brominated Derivatives of Oxindol," by Dr. Ward C. Sumpter, Marion Miller and Laura Neil Hendrick, appeared in the October issue of the Journal of the American Chemical Society.

This work was done preparatory to the publication of a paper by Dr. Sumpter on "The Chemistry of Oxindol" in Chemical Reviews, which will appear sometime in the spring.

Miss Hendrick is now doing graduate work at the University of Kentucky in the field of chemistry, and Mr. Miller has a graduate appointment in chemistry at Northwestern University beginning in January.

Uncle Joe Sees 72nd Year

By Geleta Roe

If anyone ever wanted to do research work on Western's agriculture department, the person most likely to be consulted would be Uncle Joe McCarthy.

Uncle Joe celebrated his seventy-second birthday, October 17. On that day, he was reminiscing and recalled the beginning of the agriculture training at Western. With a far-off gleam in his eye, he spoke of the time when there was but one pair of mules to cultivate sixty acres of virgin soil.

Continuing in this vein, "Uncle Joe said, 'But we really got under way when Dr. Ford and I went to Wisconsin and bought a carload of dairy cows. There were only two purebreds in the lot, but we were proud of them. However, today,' he spoke with pride, 'we have all pure breeds.'

"Of course," he admitted, "the rest of the school has progressed. Why, I remember when there were Negro cabins where the Goal Post is today, and we had a tiny heating plant on the side of the Hill that wasn't much bigger than a June-bug, and I helped build a tennis court where the heating plant now is. But perhaps the funniest thing was when R. C. Woodward and I had to lay planks down to keep out of the water in the cellar at Potter Hall."

Once more he returned to the agricultural department. This time he remarked upon the excellent farms Western now owns. "Why we have over six hundred acres of fine ground with modern well-equipped barns and the best of tools," he gloated.

Coupled with a trace of sadness, as well as pride, Uncle Joe looks back on the yesteryears, but there is a note of expectation in his voice. He wants to see the Hill populated again with students; to see the facilities of the agriculture department in full use again; to see things booming as he believes they will be after the war years.

HOLBROOK AWARDED DSC POSTHUMOUSLY

In a special ceremony held recently at Fort Knox, Capt. Gilbert S. Holbrook, Bowling Green, was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, "for extraordinary heroism in action on February 8-9, 1945, near La Face, Italy." The medal was presented to his widow, Mrs. Lillian T. Holbrook, by Gen. George D. Wahl, post commandant.

During the fighting in Italy Capt. Holbrook distinguished himself at one time by personally leading his men in an attack to wipe out enemy machine gun positions. At another time he personally engaged the enemy, capturing an enemy officer, killing two German soldiers, and wounding several others. Captain Holbrook was mortally wounded in rallying a company which had been forced to withdraw. In the counter-attack "his heroic courage and exemplary leadership reflected the finest traditions of the armed forces," read the citation.

A native of Owensboro, Holbrook was graduated from Western in '38. He also attended the University of Kentucky, and he taught for a year at Hamp, North Carolina, before entering the service five years ago.

Western was host Wednesday, October 11, to a conference on cooperative study of teacher education. The study, in progress the past three years, is conducted by Dr. R. E. Jagers, and is under the certification of the State Department of Education, Frankfort.

The program has emphasized the relation of education to improvement of living. Its purpose is to study ways of relating teacher education programs more closely to living in all areas of study as well as in vocational fields.

The following college-county study groups were represented: Berea College, Pulaski county; Eastern State Teachers College, Bell and Lincoln counties; Morehead State Teachers College, Carter county group; Murray, Marshall county; University of Louisville, Lowell and Valley schools; University of Kentucky, Green county; Western Teachers College, Hopkins and Allen counties.

Hill Announces Concert Series

Mr. Will B. Hill, general manager of the local program of the Community Concerts Association of New York, has announced a series of four concerts were presented in Bowling Meter auditorium this year. The concerts, presented in Bowling Green for the first time last year, with about four hundred students holding memberships.

The series for 1945-46 will introduce the Bary Ensemble, composed of four solo artists: Gertrude Barry, pianist; Lorna Wren, flutist; Mary Becker, violinist; Virginia Peterson, cellist, in a program of ensemble music and instrumental solos. Another concert will feature Donald Dame, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company and a well-known radio and concert artist. Having made three transcontinental tours, he made his operatic debut in Mignon in 1943. Mr. Dame will be assisted in the program by a noted concert pianist.

The world-famed Fox-Hale Ballet will highlight one of the programs. This group of five solo dancers, headed by Grant Mouradoff, leading male dancer of the Metropolitan Opera Ballet, will be accompanied by two pianos. The organization made a three month's tour of the European theater of operations recently, entertaining thousands of U. S. troops. The first program of the series will not be announced by Mr. Hill until the 1945-46 membership drive is concluded.

Only students holding memberships in the concert series will be admitted to the programs. No tickets are sold for single concerts. Sales of season tickets will be held November 6 through November 10. Student membership cards for the four concerts will sell for $2.40, and adult or nonstudents tickets will sell for $6.00. Any student selling ten memberships will receive a free season ticket. Those wishing to take part in the drive should enter their names with the office of the president before October 27.

Community Concerts is an international non-profit organization with an organized audience plan. Its purpose is to bring to cities and colleges throughout the country the greatest artists of opera, concert, and ballet.

Ogden Farm Sold

Ogden farm, which, by lease, for the last twenty years has been a part of Western, was sold this summer to Bernard and Walker, a local real estate firm.

The land extends from Lehman Avenue northeast to the new part of Fairview Cemetery and southeast to the R. W. Covington property, with the exception of a small corner tract which was sold years ago to the Bowling Green Broadcasting Company, Inc.

Club Participant Echoes Her Approval

By Helen Henry

The finger may be pointing at You! If you haven't been attending the meetings of the various clubs and other activities on the Hill, you've really been missing something. The sometimes regular, often irregular, meetings of these organizations are among the gayest and most instructive gatherings of Westerners.

The Biology Club, whose passionately loyal members maintain that it is the best club on the Hill, offers many sources of amusement as well as intellectual advancement. Kibitzers have been known to pass out in horror while sneaking a look at some of the ~~unpleasant~~ ^{shown} at meetings. The social gatherings which follow business sessions of the club are hilarious affairs, with the fan-tan fiends wildly heaving pennies around the room and the poker players huddled seriously over a deck in a world of their own.

The Chemistry-Physics Club, co-sponsored by Dr. C. P. McNally and Mr. George "Electricity" Page, is an organization filled with intellectual giants. Talents in science and music seem to parallel, for Dr. McNally at a recent meeting created a great furor by capably beating out the Western cheer song, and Marilyn Zimmerman knocked out a sweet and sentimental version of "Chop-sticks."

The Iva Scott Club, for home-ec majors, is an organization well-known for its tradition of serving refreshments after every meeting, as evidenced by the groups of co-eds seen traunting up the hill on Tuesday afternoons loaded down with pies and pats of apples.

The Studio Club, composed of student interested in fine arts, is sponsored by Miss Sarah Davis. "June-bug" Lilly, former "wimp" of the club, instituted participation in certain rather athletic parlor games, and that policy is being continued by "Slug" Ellis. These innocent little activities are guaranteed to wrench the back and damage the dignity of even the strongest.

More strictly in the intellectual vein are the meetings of the English Club, the History Club, the Education Council, the Ragland Library Science Club, and Le Cercle Francais.

The Women's Athletic Association, open to all women students, has until this year met every Monday night in the gym for wild and wooly games of basketball and volleyball. If enough girls show an interest in sports, the games will be staged this year. The contests have always been well attended, with scores of by-standers pulling for their choice of the two teams.

Student participation in the Red and Gray Band, the orchestra, and the college chorus is a primary outlet for self-expression. Band rehearsals held on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 4, are rather informal, and time-out is taken at intervals for a dose of solid boogie-woogie from the piano and a round of cokes, on Dr. Vincent, of course. The regular appearance of the band at basketball games heightens the spirit of the contest, and several programs are presented each year by the orchestra and the chorus.

The Cherry Country Life Club, organization for agriculture majors, and the Arts and Crafts Club, for industrial arts students, are all-male organizations. The activities of the two clubs dropped off to some extent during the war, but are now stepping up to normal.

Organized last year for the returning servicemen, the Veteran's Club, sponsored by Dr. Lee F. Jones, shows promise of becoming one of the most active and influential clubs on the Hill.

Organizations dropped temporarily because of a dearth of material include the Congress Debating Club, strictly for men students; Pershing Rifles, a military organization; the "W" Club, composed of lettermen in athletics; the Classical Club, coached by Miss Sibyl Stonecipher; the Social Science Club, under the direction of Prof. David McKinney; the a cappella chorus; the Out-of-State Club; and the Physical Education Club.

Only by a show of interest in the extra-curricular activities can the defunct ones be revived, so, all students, go to the meetings of the clubs which you are eligible to join. A good time will be had by all.

MR. AVERAGE MAN'S WORLD

With the end of World War II, and the international agreement to settle the future conflicts and disputes of the world by peaceable means through the channels of the United Nations Charter, Mr. Average Man began to look for a "bright day" which he was told to be forthcoming. Now, Mr. Average Man is beginning to wonder. And about what is he wondering? Just this:

"Trouble Flares In Batavia," "Loyalists Strike Back In Venezuela," "Revolt Starts In Indo-China," "Dutch East Indies," "Korea," "Army To Blow Up I. G. Farben Industries," "No Agreement Reached By Atom Bomb Control Committee." Headlines like this can and will easily destroy all that the United Nations has fought for the last five years.

Common talk runs amuck about how to control the atom bomb; what to do with Russia; how to denazify Germany; how to curb the war mongers. The answers to these questions are self evident. There is no other way to prevent war in the future than to gain the respect and confidence of other nations, to put them on a sound financial basis, and to give them their self-respect. There can be no peace, now or in the future, if sneaky and undercover methods are the means by which nations deal with each other. True, these statements are more easily made than performed, and in them alone is more than a lifetime task. We have made a great step forward in the formulation of the great charter which the nations have ratified. But are we "going to lose sight of the forest by looking at the trees"?

Are we going to place the charter on the shelf and let it gather dust while the nations of the world gobble up what they think is theirs, no matter what others feel about it? Are we going to close our eyes and allow prosperity and commercial spheres to grow and then overlap and give the friction for another great conflict? Have we forgotten about the brotherhood of man?

With the coming of atomic disintegration, the entire world is entering upon the threshold of a period which can easily be the most marvelous yet witnessed on the face of the earth, or through our own greediness and fears the atom and all the power it possesses can easily be the destruction of mankind. With the eminent possibility of radar controlled atomic rockets, and other weapons of war far beyond our conception, and the resulting possibility of annihilation of a continent with one all-powerful sweep, how else can a nation be assured of its safe guard other than by international tranquility? Science has set a great pace, and is progressing with increasing velocity, but, as so truly expressed by Dr. Quenon E. Gouwens, "unless culture keeps pace with science, disaster is imminent."

Is it a stride in the right direction to destroy Germany's industrial facilities? Certainly they should be rendered useless with regard to future war production, and industrialists should be placed and guided on the paths of peaceful manufacturing, but to allow the buildings to be destroyed is utterly wasteful.

Cannot the leaders of the world see that the small flames of discontent flaring up in isolated sections of the globe are the starting points of an enormous conflagration which will ultimately engulf the entire world? Who can blame a nation for becoming belligerent when it appears that all other countries are holding out against her? But we must place into practice the ideals for which we have striven so long, and we must make all rulers and administrations feel that they are not only wanted, but that they are necessary for the continuance of existence on this earth. It will not be long, before all realize the almost inconceivable horrors of a future war. They must be assured by a working international organization that such a war can be allayed. Fear must be reduced to a minimum. These goals cannot be reached except by standing behind the United Nations Charter, or any other such charter, with all the determination, foresight, and spirit of human kindness that can be mustered from the four corners of the earth.

These are but a few of the convictions of Mr. Average Man, but such convictions, and who can deny at least a partial truth, are becoming the ideas of more and more people. Mr. Average Man must grow in numbers, and must make himself heard, for who else shall inhabit the earth but he?

EDUCATION AND OUR HUMAN WORLD

The permanent gains of civilization are to be found in the improvement of man himself. The old values still hold; those which are within man himself or within the range of his will. The genuine values are human values.

In the "new" age of which we are hearing so much these days, many things certainly will be different; just how different we do not know for we cannot blueprint in advance the details of the conditions which the approaching age will bring. There is one thing, however, that we do know, man will be fundamentally the same; he will continue to be a composite unit with a body to be developed, a mind to be trained, and a soul to be saved.

It would seem then that the chief concern of education not only in the "new" age but in every age must be the making of men—men who really understand the nature and possibilities of mankind; who have an intelligent appreciation of the democratic way of living; who have a passion for liberty and freedom; who see modern, social, economic, and spiritual life in a setting that is worldwide in scope and international in its significance; who think and plan and pray in world terms, and who are able and willing to assume a large share of the responsibility of preserving and perpetuating the best that has been thought, said, and done in the world. There are other things that must be done, but the attainment of this goal is the first task of the "new" education.

It is a task of mighty magnitude, one that will demand the best and most intelligent men and women of our generation. American education must be able to meet this challenge and this opportunity. Toward the achievement of this high purpose of education the Western Kentucky State Teachers college must strive with all her powers and resources to make a worthy contribution.

"DEAR MA"

Well, the quarter is almost half over, and I'm getting along better than at first. Guess I'm getting collegiated or something. The only thing I have much trouble with is trying to tell who is Freshman like me and who is seniors. I thought maybe I could judge by their intelligent expressions, but nearly everybody has the same expression, only some worse than others.

We had class meetings last Tuesday morning a week ago. Everybody elected class officers. I wasn't elected one. Guess I look so ordinary that nobody wanted to nominate me. I wish I looked glamorous and unusual and maybe I could have at least been Sargeant-at-arms.

A Play-party was given at the gym last Friday night. I went and had lots of fun. There were an awful lot of students there. Most of them had on skirts; but the games were planned so well that it didn't make any difference. There was one awfully cute boy there. I hoped he'd notice me; but I was too ordinary. He looked all the time at a blonde who lives at West Hall. Ma, do you 'spose it'd ruin my hair to peroxide it? We played one tag game, where the girls had to stand back-to-back with their partners and latch elbows. My partner was one of Coach Diddle's new basketball players. He was so tall that he lifted me clear off the floor when we latched elbows. It was terribly uncomfortable. Will you send me some rubbing alcohol?

The party ended with group singing. It was swell. Hope we have another one soon.

I'm trying to learn to play bridge. We go to the Goal-Post nearly every afternoon. I don't know much yet about bidding; but I can almost always bid one club and be sure to make it. Some of the old players bid four or five diamonds without batting an eyelash.

Well, Ma, I'd better sign off and study English. Dr. Wilson is doing his best with me; but he works under a terrible handicap.

Ma, if Pa has any old second-hand five and ten dollar bills tell him to send me one. I had to get a new meal ticket and now I'm broke.

Your loving daughter,

FANNIE FRESHMAN.

IN CASE YOU MISSED OUR POINT

This issue is being devoted primarily to publicizing the organizations on the Hill that are adding to the social features of the school. For the practical: You are paying your money to come to school; you want the most for it and here is your chance. For the scholarly: Much of an individual's knowledge comes incidentally and what better way to learn than to associate with people interested in the same things. For the rest of us: It is organized fun; it is when the much-talked-about spirit of the Hill is at its best; it is where you mix and mingle, chin and jaw, and we love it!

DEMOCRAT AT THE BREAKFAST TABLE

The Courier-Journal was being torn to bits one day last week as everyone snatched it to read about Judy Hagstone. Someone accidentally read the headline which said in effect that a bill was being introduced into the state legislature to permit Negroes to do work in any Kentucky graduate or professional school.

After everyone had aired his opinion, there could have been no doubt that the time is not ripe for this instigation. The general opinion was that even Mason and Dixon had to draw a line somewhere and while the tendency is toward center it is still on the right.

WILL WE HAVE TO WAIT?

Those people who went through grade and high school with us are still around. And still trying to convince all and sundry that they never study; they are just smart as a whip without studying. Maybe those who are gullible enough to believe should be allowed to go on, even attempting to imitate. But for the sake of altruism we should destroy this illusion. Margaret Fuller said that drudgery is necessary to call out the treasures of the mind, as harrowing and planting those of the earth. Maybe in the next world there won't be such people.

YOU CAN CHOOSE THEM

For the past two weeks there have been elections galore, as is customary at the beginning of the school year. We have discussed after the elections the people who won—tearing them apart. Of course, before the elections we sat passively by and did not even nominate those whom we felt qualified to run. You are notified in time to think who would serve you best, not in order to campaign for your roommate. Now you have elected your officers, support them.

A PENITENT HEART

President Garrett recently received an anonymous letter which read in part, "I was in school there (Western) more than twenty years ago. . . . I was a poor lad and secured work on the school farm. One day I went to the office to get my pay and my work had not yet been turned in but the farm manager was there and okeyed the days' work which was about $1.50. Later I was paid for the same day again. I took it knowing that it wasn't mine. It has been in my heart ever since to make it right. I am returning it four fold and asking God to forgive me."

There is no need for comment; no one should be praised for doing what is right because that is expected of every man.

Kentucky Building News

This is a continuation of the list of contributions made to the Kentucky Library and Museum. During the lifetime of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Proctor, they gave many interesting newspapers and magazines to the Kentucky collection. Following the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Proctor in 1932 and 1945, respectively, their relatives, Miss Virginia Evans and Miss Annie Barclay, and the American National Bank, as executor, have placed another valuable collection of books, scrapbooks, manuscripts, and papers in the library.

Book Marks

A gift has come to Western library in a fund which allows the staff to order from a list of publications of the Yale University Press at half price. This gift came from an anonymous alumnus of Yale. Western was the fortunate recipient because its library had earlier been placed on the college library list of the Carnegie Foundation. Information of this gift came from George Farmlay Day of the Yale Department of Education. Mr. Day is the brother of Clarence Day, the late humorist. The books received include: The Yale Shakespeare in 40 volumes, The Green Mountain Smelter, Letters of Joseph Conrad, Charles Dickens as a Legal Historian, Legends of Hawaii, previously unpublished letters of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, and other books of biography, history and other fields.

To supplement the periodical collection three new magazines have been added this year: Canadian Geographical Journal, which interprets "in authentic and popular form" the geography of Canada, primarily, but includes articles on the rest of the British Commonwealth; the Daily Mail, and the Manchester Guardian Weekly, which reflect the ideas and policies of the labor and conservative parties in England.

Faculty members and students have found most useful the magazines added last year: Hispanic American Historical Review, Inter-American; Journal of American Folklore, American Folklore, American Dialect Society Publication, Oil and Gas Journal, and Journal of the American Society of Agronomy. The staff was devoted to the freshmen the first two days of the college year. Miss Margie Helm told at the freshman chapel of the three libraries on the campus, the College Library, the Kentucky Library, and the Training School Library. Together these libraries have nearly seventy thousand volumes. The new students were invited on Tuesday to come to the College Library in different small groups each hour for a tour of the library. It is hoped that this visit will acquaint the students with the locations and rules and some of the resources of the library and save time for them during the coming weeks.

Miss Sara Tyler, periodical librarian, is back after a year's study

Included in the last collection are a number of rare and out-of-print publications of the Rev. James M. Pendleton, a prominent Baptist minister, and father of Mrs. Proctor. Fletcher Hodges, Jr., curator of the Foster Hall collection at the University of Pittsburgh, has given to the Kentucky Library five recent publications about the noted song writer, Stephen Collins Foster. For a number of years Josiah K. Lilly of Indianapolis, founder of Foster Hall, has been a contributor of items about Stephen Foster to the Kentucky Library.

Home Ec Conference

The Vocational Agriculture and Home Economics District Conference will be held in the home economics building, November 16-17. Home economics teachers will consider problems of teacher-family relationship. Local chapters of Future Homemakers of America will be organized at this meeting.

Some of the greatest speakers in the Southern Baptist Convention are to appear on the program. Dr. Courts Redford of the home missions board, Atlanta, Georgia, will be the main speaker, and Dr. B. B. McKinney will be in charge of the singing. About thirty Western students will attend the meeting.

In the Peabody Library School. Miss Tyler received her MA degree at the June Commencement.

Terry Visits During Leave

Lieut. (sg) William L. "Gander" Terry, U. S. Navy, who coached the Western Teachers college Hilltopper football team more than 10 years, with his wife and daughter, Barbara, has arrived in Bowling Green from Ottumwa Naval base, Ottumwa, Iowa, where Lieut. Terry coached a service football team.

The naval officer had the opportunity of stopping a few days in Bowling Green en route to a primary base at Corpus Christi, Texas. His wife and daughter expect to remain here, at their residence on High street. Their daughter is a freshman at the Training School.

Lieut. Terry, who entered service in July, 1943, coached football at St. Mary's Pre-Flight school on the West Coast two years, before being transferred to the Iowa base in January of this year. The former Hilltopper grid coach received his Naval commission in July, 1944.

Coming to Western in 1930 to coach the Red and Gray eleven Lieut. Terry, later was on leave of absence, returning to the campus in 1934 and remaining at the head of the football coaching staff until 1943.

Bob Lilly, former Western student, spent several days visiting friends on the Hill. He has served with the Merchant Marines for the last two years.

HELM, TRAVELSTEAD ATTEND COUNCIL

Twenty representatives of the camp and hospital community council of the Bowling Green-Warren county Red Cross chapter attended a meeting of the Kentuckiana camp and hospital council at Fort Knox, Monday, October 22. The meeting was held at the recreation hall of the new cantonment section regional hospital.

Miss Margie Helm, one of the chairmen of the Woman's Literary club, and Mrs. Nelle G. Travelstead of the war mothers organization, represented Western.

The Red Cross camp and hospital service committee is a clearing house for civilian organizations or individuals wishing to provide equipment or supplies for Bowman Field convalescent hospital, Fort Knox hospital, and Nichols General hospital. The committee does not make appeals for funds.

Contributions are made not to the Red Cross, but to the armed forces. The Red Cross simply provides the channel through which the committees may be apprised of the needs and through which contributed articles and services can reach the post on which they are needed.

Frances Wilson, BS '45, is teaching home economics in Utica.

Officially the 1945-46 basketball season opened Monday, October 15, although many of the boys have been working out informally for the past few days. Monday afternoon the coaches called all the players into a session which included general instructions for the year, and in the following two weeks the future Red and Gray squad has worked out daily.

The Hilltoppers' schedule, to be announced later, has many home game attractions in the appearance of such sturdy outfits as Marshall college, Morehead, Eastern, Louisville and Murray.

One of the strongest teams to be played away from home is DePaul whose aggregation comprises all of last year's team, and one in particular: "Big George" Mikan. DePaul is booked to play the Hilltoppers in Paducah on January 14. The University of Arkansas Razorbacks, cage power of the Southwest conference, will open their 1945-46 season against the Toppers in a two-game series, December 6 and 7 at Little Rock, Arkansas.

WKTC
With regular basketball practice set to begin about November 1, the College High Cardinals have been putting in some limbering up practice for the past few afternoon at the Western gym. This year's team will be handled again by Coaches Diddle and Hornback, assisted by Charlie Hays. Six freshmen and five members each from the sophomore, junior and senior classes will comprise the team on the Cardinal floor.

The season will open November 30 with a game against Daviess County high school.

WKTC
Softball had a big play in our sports news this week despite the fact that it isn't the official softball season.

In one of the physical education classes last week in softball, so violent and enthusiastic was the play that the teacher, Coach Hornback, who was playing first base was knocked off first by a powerful drive by a student whose head struck Mr. Hornback in the face breaking his nose.

Mr. Hornback was informed by the doctor that the case was one of the severest breaks he had seen and that Ted should remain in bed for a week to ward off complications.

WKTC
We have heard such cries as, "Why don't we have a football team?" and "Every other school our size in the state has one, why can't we?" Well, for the benefit of those people who would like the answer, here it is. In a recent interview, President Garrett had this to say on the prospects for football on the Hill: "Western won't put a football team on the field until they can put a good team into competitive play." Another angle to consider is

ACTRESS TOURS ITALY WITH USO

Daisy Pearce Stirn, former Bowling Green resident and student at Western, is now touring Italy with a USO dramatic cast. Known theatrically as Jean Pearce, the actress first appeared with the Bowling Green Players Guild. Her most important performance in the United States was her role in Able's Irish Rose, which ran for two years in Chicago. She also appeared in Ciordia, which toured various cities throughout the country.

Overseas since the first of August, Mrs. Stirn has appeared in many army camps and hospitals. On various trips, she has been in Naples, Florence, Pompeii, Boire, and Pisa. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Pearce, Bowling Green. Mr. Pearce is director of the Western department of extension.

that the physical education department is understaffed with Coaches Terry and Stansbury in the service. In a letter to President Garrett, Lieutenant Terry expressed hope that he may be discharged not later than spring. He asked that Coaches Diddle and Hornback be on the lookout for prospective football players in order that Western might be ready to resume football in the fall of '46.

Jesse Robinson Reported Safe

Missing in action since the sinking of the submarine USS Perch in the Java sea engagement on March 1 of 1942, En 2/c Jesse Holland Robinson has notified his parents that he is safe and well.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Robinson, Alton, received a letter from their son, and it was the first direct news his parents have received of the sailor's status since the War Department message in 1942, which informed them that he was missing in action. Unofficial reports from a short wave broadcast early in 1943 listed E. M. Robinson as a prisoner of the Japanese.

A nephew of Miss Fannie Holland, member of the Training school faculty, Robinson was graduated from College High in '37 and attended one term at Western before enlisting in the navy in '38.

POSTHUMOUS AWARD GIVEN BUCKNER

On October 20, the Navy announced the posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Medal to Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., famous commander of the Tenth Army, who was killed on Okinawa, June 18.

General Buckner was killed while leading his troops in the final capture of the hotly contested island which later became an American fighter and bomber base.

His commander, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, said at the time that the general's leadership was a "new inspiration to overcome any and all obstacles standing between us and final victory over Japan."

Buckner, a native of Mumfordsville, was the son of Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner of the Confederate Army. The elder Buckner was, for a short time during the Civil War, stationed at Fort Albert Sidney Johnston, which now occupies the crest of Western's campus.

On October 26, 27, and 28, the Baptist Student Union will hold a statewide convention in Campbellsville, Kentucky.

Once settled at her new post, she set about finding substitutes for the 24 radios, 2,000 books, furniture and equipment lost. Some of the furniture she replaced by articles found on a salvaged ship in the harbor. With these as a nucleus, she and her two assistants, rounding up scraps of furniture, ordering new supplies of games, books, and articles from the Red Cross, soon had a large recreation and lounge tent open with a smaller craft shop tent nearby.

Miss Randolph landed in Melbourne, Australia, with the first group of Red Cross workers in 1942. Since then she has worked in hospitals in Brisbane and Townsville, Australia; Hollandia, New Guinea, and the Philippines. Her home is in Marston, Missouri.

The letter: On October 13 it came. Mr. Sterrett Cuthbertson, director of public relations at Western, was reminding me that the next issue of the College Heights Herald would come off the press on October 26. Ouch! Not a line written. Not a letter from you. Not a word from those good old Alumni who like to hear from their friends scattered to the four corners of the earth. I walked down Fourth street. I met several Westerners. I called Bob Turner. I clipped several items from a limited supply of letters received recently. Enough for column number one. Now don't wait... Write.

In answer to Mr. Cuthbertson's letter I am sending the following column. My pledge to him is a bigger and better column. I can't keep this promise unless you do your part. If you enjoy reading Alumni Flashes as much as I enjoy writing them, you'll write me a letter today.

Your columnist: No longer am I in the teaching profession. I left rather reluctantly, but my First Love, advertising, called, and I accepted a position on the Courier-Journal and Times staff. Our advertising director says that he likes to think of the writing and the selling of advertising as a very high type of teaching... consoling, at least.

A college education never hurts anyone who realizes that there is still much to learn and continues throughout life with an open mind.

Interesting quotes: "About half of the faculty at Homer, Illinois school, are Western graduates," Connie Hume, '34... "Looking forward to receiving the Herald again," Mrs. Charles E. Evans, formerly Elizabeth Young, BS '44... "I have been employed to help build up the industrial arts program at East Tennessee State college at Johnson City. It came to a standstill during the war after having been outstanding for years. I have a new shop building to begin with," Alfred "Moose" Moore, '32.

You are still young if accepting new ideas is not painful.

Over the wire: Bob Turner, principal of the Henry Clay and Saltisbury elementary school in Louisville, tells me that he is remodeling his home in Fern Creek. Mrs. Turner, Eallie Yarbrough to many of you, is teaching in the Fern Creek school. In talking with Bob, I learned that Eddie Becher, AB and MA at Western, is principal of the Roosevelt elementary school, the largest of its kind in Louisville... Joe Howard, Manual high school teacher, is president of the Louisville Teachers Association... A. J. Beeler, Manual teacher, is chairman of the program committee of the Louisville Teachers Association... Artie Townsend, one-time superintendent of Cadiz schools and later county superintendent of the Shelby county schools, is teaching at Ahren's Trade school in Louisville and is teaching physics at the Louisville School of Pharmacy... Carlos Burkhead, long time superintendent of Lebanon Junction schools, is teaching at Ahren's Trade school and is teaching extension work for the Indiana university... Black Knight, former Jefferson county high school teacher, is special FBI agent in Baltimore. During the summer he, his wife, formerly Laura Hoover, and their 10 months old daughter, Mary Hoover, visited friends in Kentucky... John Ramsey is teaching and coaching basketball at Fern Creek high school... Everett Farmer, principal of the Fern Creek grade school, was recently elected president of the Jefferson County Teachers Association... Ed Ray is working on the Ph.D in the University of California... Dr. Glenn Kendall is Dean of the School of Education at the University of Maine.

Defeat is nothing but education. It is the step toward something better. Make each new job an improvement over the last one.

Seen on Fourth Street: Same old John L. looking for men's shorts on Fourth, but when he found that 50c shorts are now $2.50 he changed his mind. That was John L. Vickers, '30, now assistant state director of the office of supply in the agency of marketing in Louisville of the agencies. WMC, WPB, Smaller Plants, Representatives of the Army and Navy, and the Civil Service Commission. At lunch, I suggested that if there had been any more alphabetical arrangements, he would have had them meet with the group. He told me that Dan Baldwin is in the marketing department of Auburn university in Alabama. Dan married Freda Feebach from Carlisle and has four children. He also recalled that Carlos Oakley was area supervisor for the state department for one year, with offices in Madisonville. Carlos is now back as superintendent of the Livermore schools... Saw Muir Taylor not so long ago. He is a sales representative of the Balfour Engraving Company... Red Dorsey, training administrator for the Army Air Forces in Greensboro, N. C., called me last week while he was in Louisville on business. We enjoyed having him out for fried chicken Sunday noon.

Courteous As The Old South

Throughout the colorful history of the South, the word "Courtesy" has been given true expression. The L&N strives to continue that tradition as a living reality.

But the South itself, and this Railroad which has so faithfully served its interests for nearly a century, have changed greatly.

For over 95 years, the "Old Reliable" has aided the enormous development of the South and welded together a wide expanse of Southern territory. Its ever-mounting contribution in taxes in support of government, including schools and highways, its purchases and those of its 34,000 employees, its dependable service—all have accrued to the vast growth of the Southern region.

During the last four years, it has worked primarily to win the war. With glorious Peace, it is now undertaking to improve its facilities and service—its present improvement program is more than $28,000,000.

As constant as Southern courtesy, the L&N now strives to promote still greater Southern progress... to champion agricultural and industrial development. It hopes to merit continued public confidence and good will.
